ST. LOUIS, June 20.—The National Derby of 1896 will be remembered as one of the greatest events ever seen in the West, and Prince Lief as one of the greatest three-year-olds of the season.

At 1 o'clock the crowd began to arrive. The heat, though intense and unrelieved by the light breeze, was not as oppressive as on the down-town streets. Fully twenty thousand people packed the grandstand, half of them ladies in holiday attire.

The track was lightning fast and favorites carried off the honors. When the bugle called the horses to the post for the big event, the thousands in the grand stand rose to their feet and cast eager glances for their favorite, Prince Lief, to whom, on account of his being the only representative of this section, they had pinned their faith to keep the rich stake and honor at home. Would he fulfill their desire? The grandstand was not so lucky. Prince Lief was the only one to win.

A DOUBLE SMASH.

Two World's Records Go Down Under Hamilton at Denver.

DENVER, June 20.—W. W. Hamilton smashed two world's bicycle records this afternoon, and defeated O. B. Hackenberg in both races in which the two favorites were entered. The performances of Hamilton were phenomenal for the reason that he was not in the best condition, suffering from a severe cold in the chest, and not being up to his usual physical form. Nevertheless he did remarkable work, and the 6000 people were wild over his victories.

The first of the contests was the one-mile unopposed, Hackenberg and Hamilton starting from opposite sides of the track. Hamilton made a brilliant finish, the time was 2:09. It was a standing start, and the time beat the world's record for an unopposed mile, standing start.

Hamilton won the second event, two miles, standing start, in 4:10. The time was 4:10. This also broke a world's record, Charles Murphy having held the two miles with 4:14 up to this time.

In the five-mile professional invitation race, Bertie Banks won, Donald McKay second, E. J. Paradis third; time 12:30.

PRUSSIA IS DOWNED.

A COALITION AGAINST HER IN THE BUNDESRATH.

Separational Parliamentary Episode Just Coming to Light—A New Slap from Bavaria—Emperor William Taking Good Care of Li Hung Chang.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

BERLIN, June 20.—(By Atlantic Cable.) A sensational occurrence in the Bundestag, growing directly out of the anti-Prussian sentiment engendered by the Moscow incident, has just leaked out. The German press was either ignorant of it or preferred to be silent regarding it.

The question of prolonging the Wurttemberg Notebank charter for using its own paper money was up for discussion yesterday. Prussia in conformity with the settled Prussian financial precedents, moved to reject the request.

Prussia, however, was defeated by a vote of 35 to 23, only the Waldeck, Lippe and Hanover dissenting. The Bundestag's charter therefore was prolonged until 1910. This is the first time in a quarter of a century that Prussia has found the Bundestag in almost unaltered coalition against her, and the fact is all the more noteworthy because there was no attempt to answer the argument of Prussia's delegates, and it is now believed that similar banking institutions in Bavaria and Saxony will be established.

The Chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, and the members of the Prussian Cabinet, were dumbfounded upon hearing the decision of the Bundestag, and were greatly annoyed at the incident.

This, however, is one evidence of the strong Prussianophile feeling in the south of Germany. The news that Herr Camacho, president of the German colony of Moscow and maker of the remarks about the Prussian emperor, which created the trouble, has been decorated with the Order of the Red Eagle, has caused renewed outbursts of indignation in Bavaria.

On Tuesday the King of Saxony gave a special audience to Count von Moltke, Emperor William's aide-de-camp, at Dresden, to hear a detailed report of the Moscow incident.

This week's issue of two humorous papers at Munich contain cartoons showing a horribly dilapidated Prussian eagle with the Bavarian lion standing by with jaws upraised and gnashing teeth. Prince Ludwig of Bavaria, who went from Moscow to the Buda Pesth exposition, returns to his regiment at Augsburg within a week, without going to Berlin. His admirers at Augsburg are planning a series of ovations.

At the closing of the Bundestag, Baron von Bismarck, who was present, said: "We are firmly convinced that our royal dynasty will endeavor to preserve constitutionally the guaranteed independence of Bavaria."

This is regarded as a direct slap at Prussia and throughout the week there has been a series of Prussianophile manifestations. At Munich, Prussian tourists and residents have been insulted.

Germany has been fetted Li Hung Chang in an unusual manner. His reception by Emperor William on Sunday was more impressive and pompous than anything of the kind in years past. His Majesty personally paid the greatest attention to the Chinese statesman, and has given special orders that he be shown everything in Germany which he desires to see on his visit.

The distinguished traveler will visit the Kaiser's residence at Potsdam, and will be accompanied by the Emperor and Empress. He will also visit the Kaiser's residence at Potsdam, and will be accompanied by the Emperor and Empress.

Next week Li Hung Chang and the German government will enter into negotiations in regard to the increase of the import duties on tea and silk. The German government is supplying China with a coal station in Chinese waters.

The German Minister of Foreign Affairs, Baron von Bismarck, will also attempt to obtain consent for the establishment of large German mercantile settlements in Chinese ports, especially at Swatow and Canton, with exclusive German jurisdiction. This simultaneous presence in Germany of the Chinese statesman and Li Hung Chang is embarrassing to the Foreign Office. Emperor William and Prince Hohenlohe have shown the Japanese soldier the Japanese flag, and the Japanese flag is being hoisted in the Japanese flag.

Many numbers of Chinamen employed at farm work are replacing the Russian hands. A Berlin firm is supplying Chinese coolies to Silesian land-owners at 25 cents per day.

It is understood that, after the army maneuvers in Galicia, the Emperor will visit the exposition at Buda Pesth and grant the Emperor and Empress a grand and historic procession and being planned for the occasion.

Early during the week Prince Hohenlohe will give a garden party to the Emperor and Empress. The Emperor will be accompanied by the Emperor and Empress.

It will be made to secure a majority to pass the Civil Codes Bill prior to the adjournment of that body. The anti-Semites and Socialists, however, have resolved upon an obstructive policy for the balance of the session.

Mrs. Radzinsky's wife, who, with her husband, fled to Chicago in 1891, after fraudulent pilfering for an immense sum, recently returned to Munich. She was sentenced to eight months in jail. Radzinsky returned in 1894, and is serving a three-years' sentence.

The festival on the grounds of the Foreign Office on Tuesday for the benefit of the children's excursions was a great success and netted a large sum of money.

OUT OF THEIR BOUNDS.

But No News of Sanguinary Nature from Caracas.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

LONDON, June 20.—(By Atlantic Cable.) Inquiries made at the Colonial Office today show that the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Chamberlain, has received no confirmation of reports from Caracas that a sanguinary conflict had taken place in the territory in dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela in British Guiana, and the rumor is not confirmed there. It is further stated that no information has been received from Caracas or from Georgetown, which would tend to alter the statement made by the Secretary of State for the Colonies in the House of Commons yesterday, namely, that it was true that Venezuelans have crossed the boundary and had entered British Guiana, and that the British officials who were engaged in the work of surveying. But no mention was made of a conflict of a sanguinary nature.

Chamberlain was questioned as to whether the Marquis of Salisbury still adheres to his determination not to submit the British claims to arbitration, whereupon the Colonial Secretary referred his questioner to the Marquis of Salisbury.

The Daily Chronicle says: "If the Marquis of Salisbury succeeds in concluding an arbitration treaty with the United States, he will have placed his name in history on a pinnacle so high that no other achievement possible to his career and position could have ever enabled him to attain it."

MUST PLAY HER CARDS.

Mrs. Nettie R. Craven Accused of Forgery and Fraud.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—Mrs. Nettie R. Craven must show the cards she holds in the game that is to determine the disposition of the millions of the late James G. Fair. If she has other deeds to valuable property besides those recorded Friday evening, and if she possesses a certificate of marriage to the dead millionaire, as has been currently reported, they must be brought into the light. Judge Slack has set Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock as the time for Mrs. Craven to play any cards she may yet have in hand.

This sudden aspect of affairs of this celebrated case was precipitated by the filing by Mrs. Craven's attorney and business manager of two deeds to property owned by Fair and valued at nearly $1,500,000. The recording of these deeds placed Fair's heirs under the trust will on the defense. They must either deny the authenticity of the document, or else sit idly by and see Mrs. Craven proceed to collect the income of her newly-acquired possessions.

The opposing attorneys at once boldly declared that the deeds filed on Friday were forgeries, pure and simple. They claim that Mrs. Craven penciled the will of September 24 herself. Moreover, they boast that they have undisputed evidence that James G. Fair never appeared before Notary J. J. Cooney to acknowledge any instrument of any kind; that, on the contrary, it was Mrs. Craven who brought the deeds filed Friday to Cooney for acknowledgment. Cooney is thus made a party to the charges of fraud.

the roars of applause from every one of the rest of the procession filed in. Those who had flags flourished them frantically. Those who had not, waved their Japanese lanterns in the air, wadded hats, handkerchiefs and anything else that came handy. The standard-bearers mounted the steps to the platform.

Are filling the land.
They pray that Columbia's
Bright star flag shall wave,
Over Labor protected
From the serf and the slave.

The torchlights came out
From the tall chimneys' crown,
And great hammers beat
As the glad news rolls round.

SO FORGETFUL.

Mary Brady Does not Remember Certain Circumstances.

Supervisor Woolman's Memory is Blank in Spots.

Plaintiff in the Libel Suit Admits Damaging Facts and Forgets Important Details—Does not Recall Her Affidavits.

The hearing of Mary Brady's libel suit against the Times-Mirror Company was resumed before Judge York yesterday morning. Plaintiff's attorney asked leave to amend the complaint by striking out the allegation of special damage and by increasing the ad damnum in the general allegation of damage, but upon objection by the defense the motion was finally withdrawn. The cross-examination of the plaintiff, Mrs. Brady, was then commenced by Senator Stephen M. White. The witness testified that her five children were Mary, aged 16; Philip, aged 13; Thomas, aged 10; Cecilia, aged 7, and Peter, aged 5. Philip and Thomas are at a charitable school near Santa Cruz; the other three children are at home. The three children from the nursery who were placed in her charge were brought to her by Supervisor J. H. Woolman. No one was with him except the children. Plaintiff had not asked him to obtain for her the care of any children. The children brought from the day nursery were John Leabo, about 11 years of age, Bertha Bashford, about 9, and Burton Greathouse, about 9. A fourth child, named Bashford, about 2 years old, was brought to her by its uncle about December 24, 1892, but Mrs. Woolman had nothing to do with this child. Two of the day-nursery children were brought to her by Mr. Woolman about November 20, 1892, and the third about a week later. She kept the children for about six weeks, until the new Board of Supervisors came. Then Supervisor Nason came and took the children. Being asked whether she had any arrangement or understanding with Mr. Woolman before he brought the children, witness said that she had been nursing at the County Hospital and when asked whether she had intended how many children she could care for she had replied "six or seven." Witness could not remember how many she was authorized to care for, but did not appear before the Board of Supervisors about these children. When asked whether she received pay from the county for taking care of her own child, Peter, the witness replied, "Not very much." Two documents were then offered in evidence after the plaintiff had identified her signature to the affidavit, appended to each paper. The first one was a bill by the plaintiff against San Diego county dated December 10, 1892, for "care and board of indigent children at the rate of $10 per month as ordered by the Board of Supervisors, as follows: John Leabo, 13 days, Nov. 19 to Nov. 20, inclusive, $4.30; Bertha Bashford, 13 days, Nov. 19 to Nov. 20, inclusive, $4.30; Peter Brady, 13 days, Nov. 19 to Nov. 20, inclusive, $4.30. Total $12.90. Attached to the affidavit of Mrs. Brady taken by Supervisor J. H. Woolman. The bill was signed by John Leabo, Bertha Bashford, Peter Brady and Burton Greathouse. The second document was a bill by plaintiff against San Diego county, dated January 8, 1893, for "care and board of John Leabo, Bertha Bashford, Peter Brady and Burton Greathouse, for the month of December, 1892, and was also sworn to before Supervisor Woolman. It was allowed on January 9, 1893. Witness stated that she did not know the signature of Supervisor Woolman. The affidavits were signed in the Supervisor's office. The day nursery was a charitable institution. Witness had been in the nursery only once. The citizens maintained it for children who had no parents or others to support them. She had never seen the children from the nursery until Mr. Woolman brought them. She did not ask any one to send children to her. It was proposed a week or two before the children came, by the wife of the superintendent of the County Hospital. She had known Mr. Woolman several years. He was a neighbor. When he brought the children she was living on Columbia street, three or four blocks from the government barracks. At the time witness swore to the two bills against the county, Mr. Woolman and another man were present. Children up to the age of 14 years were received at the day nursery. Witness's husband was in San Diego lately, within three or four weeks; he was a shoemaker, but drank and spent more than he made. The property in San Diego was mortgaged, and three times the mortgage would have been foreclosed but by her own efforts witness borrowed money at a low rate of interest. J. H. Woolman, called to the stand by the plaintiff, testified that he has lived in San Diego for fourteen years; he was Supervisor but his term expired January 1, 1893. He was acquainted with Mrs. Brady and all of the Supervisors and read the report immediately after its publication. He thought he could tell who was referred to in that article as "a certain widow." He thought it was Mrs. Brady, the plaintiff. Plaintiff had told witness that she was destitute and asked his assistance; she said her husband had deserted her, and asked whether the Supervisors could give her a position as nurse in the County Hospital. Witness arranged for her to go to the hospital as a nurse, but she had to take her two youngest children with her and they took so much of her time that she did not give satisfaction and remained only two weeks. Afterward some of the county's indigent children were given into her charge. Witness was chiefly instrumental in bringing this about. Witness remembered that one of plaintiff's own children was included in the four indigent children that she was caring for. He did not know about plaintiff's circumstances but believed her destitute. He was acquainted with Leonard Goodwin and had known him two or three years. On cross-examination Woolman said that he had never been on any but friendly terms with plaintiff and that he had never assisted her but this of time. She was employed at the hospital three or four weeks. Witness could not remember who made the motion before the Board of Supervisors to put the children in plaintiff's care. The matter came before him and he advised the board to act as they did, but he could not remember whether he gave the names of the children to the board. Witness could not remember whether the order was for five children; he did not think he was present at the meeting of the board on January 7, 1893, when the order was made that the children should be returned to the day nursery. Witness identified his signature to the plaintiff's affidavits, upon her bills against the county; the bill of December 10, 1892, was in his handwriting. He did not remember where he took plaintiff's affidavits nor who was present. The county had indigent children at the day nursery and paid for them. The children taken to plaintiff were paid for by the county. Witness could not remember that indigent children had ever been placed in the charge of anyone except plaintiff. J. S. Buck, called to the stand by plaintiff, testified that he was chairman of the Board of Supervisors in 1892. The county paid plaintiff $10 per month for each of the children assigned to her; at the day nursery the county had paid $12.50. Witness knew nothing of plaintiff's financial condition. He believed on cross-examination Mr. Buck admitted that the three children from the nursery were properly cared for there. The order of the board was that four or five children should be taken out from the nursery and placed in the care of plaintiff. Witness thought that Mr. Woolman obtained that order and made the motion giving the children to plaintiff. Mr. Woolman had suggested plaintiff's appointment as nurse at the County Hospital. Witness could not remember whether there were more than one member of the committee that recommended that the children be given to plaintiff, but was positive that Woolman was on that committee. Mrs. William Roemer, called to the stand by plaintiff, testified to her long acquaintance with plaintiff. Both witnesses read the alleged libel at the time of its publication and both said they knew that plaintiff was the person referred to as "a certain grass widow." Plaintiff's attorney then called to the stand Harry Chandler, who testified that he has had charge, for six years past, of the circulation of The Times, and from the books it appears that on January 9, 1893, the date of the alleged libel, the circulation of The Times in San Diego county was thirty. The daily circulation of The Times on that day was 11,200, and approximately seven-eighths or nine-tenths of this was in California.

Mrs. Brady, the plaintiff, was then recalled and asked to state the circumstances under which she took charge of the children from the day nursery. She said that when it was proposed that she should take the children, she was asked how many she would have to take in order to justify her in undertaking the arrangement; she replied six or seven. When only three were brought she felt it would not justify her, and that with so few she could not make a living. "Someone" suggested that she should take one of her own children to make up the number. She had no means at all; her home was mortgaged and about to be foreclosed. Upon cross-examination plaintiff admitted that she could not remember who it was that asked how many children she could take. She saw the order of the board, giving her five children, in the Union of about two weeks before she got the children. She received two of the children about November 19, 1892, and received Burton Greathouse within a week or two weeks afterward. It was not until she went to the Supervisors for payment either the first or second time, that it was arranged that the county should pay for one of her own children. It must have been as late as December 1, 1892, that this was arranged. Witness went for her pay about the first of the month. At this point the witness was asked how, in view of her testimony, she explained her bill against the county in which she charged for the care of her own child from November 19 to November 30, 1892. She replied that she had no recollection about that; that the document did not refresh her memory; and that she did not remember whether she signed and swore to the two bills before Woolman. Witness could not remember who suggested that she should charge for her own child. She did not suppose there was anything untrue in either of the bills. She gave up the children January 7, 1893; Supervisor Nason came in her absence and took them. Witness could not remember whether it was the first or second time she called for payment that the arrangement was made about her own child. Witness was in the Supervisor's office when she swore to the claims, but did not remember why the clerk did not swear her. She did not remember swearing to any document before Mr. Woolman, outside of the courthouse. This concluded plaintiff's evidence, and the case was continued until Monday.

Baseball Today. There will be two games of baseball at Athletic Park this afternoon, and the indications are for a good afternoon's sport. The first game will be called at 1:30, and the Admirals and Tribles will be the contending teams. The Tribles took the Wilsons into camp last Sunday and intend to do the same with the Admirals today. The Admirals have a good fielding team, and do not lack in heavy hitters and no doubt the game will be won on its merits.

The second game will be called at 3 o'clock, and will be played by the Admirals and Wilsons.

Tough on Express Writers. LOS ANGELES, June 20, 1896.—(To the Editor of The Times) The motto of the Express should be: "First of all the news after The Times has it." I find that both papers and I find that three-fourths of the local items in the Express first appear in The Times. Today, of twenty-one items in the Express, seventeen were in The Times, even to reproduction, word for word, account of a murder on Chaves street. All cannot be included in the Express, but it was not tough on the readers of the Express.

THEY'RE AFTER HIM

Possé of Officers in Pursuit of Murderer Dunham.

The Red-handed Fiend Seen Near Havilah, Kern County.

Recognized by an Acquaintance. Sheriff Burr, with Deputies and a Times Reporter, Are on His Trail.

Frank Pinney of Pasadena came down from his ranch, six miles from Havilah in Kern county, Friday, and it transpires that he did so because he had met and talked with Dunham, the murderer, within a mile of his house. Friday morning he and a young companion, with their guns in their hands, were walking down the trail, when they saw a man sitting on the ground, apparently resting after a ride. He hailed them as they passed by, and, going a little nearer to him, Pinney recognized him as Dunham, having known him in Pasadena about four years ago.

The horse he was riding was a magnificent animal and upon it was a new saddle, to which were strapped two revolvers, a small box and a roll. Dunham had no sign that he knew the man, but he and his companion walked on down the road, returning in about half an hour. The man was gone, but they followed his trail across the stream and over the mountain, until they became迷惘. It is said to be a wild and lonely place, where there has not been a visitor before for six months.

There is now no doubt that Dunham was in Pasadena four years ago, and that he is identical with the San José man, as Pinney is clear as to his identity and recognized Dunham at once. This gives a valuable clue to the officers, and it is thought now that the capture of the man is only a few days off at most.

Pinney told the facts to Sheriff Burr yesterday and preparations were at once made to set out on a search for the red-handed murderer who is so badly wanted. Sheriff Burr, with Deputy Sheriff W. A. White, Marshal Lacey of Pasadena, Frank Pinney and a Times reporter all prepared for an emergency, departed for the North on the 9 o'clock train last evening, determined to trace Dunham to his lair and catch him if possible. At Caliente the party will meet Deputy Sheriff Barnhill, who will join the party, and all will go thence by horse to the point near Havilah where Dunham was seen.

A HOUSE WARMING. Uncomfortable Experience Follows a Day's Moving.

Yesterday Mrs. E. M. White moved into a cottage at No. 245 South Hill street, also occupied by G. Hutchinson and his family. Last evening Little Morrie Hutchinson, 11 years old, and Cora White, a still younger child, were playing dominoes together in the dining-room, when Merle accidentally knocked over the lamp. The children screamed for help and Mr. Hutchinson and M. A. Silva, a neighbor, rushed in and put out the blaze with a garden hose before the fire engines could respond to the alarm turned in from box No. 31.

Little Morrie, who is lame, was much grieved at the damage wrought. What worried her most of all was the fear her pretty little puppy had been hurt, and when the tiny creature was brought to her safe and sound she was greatly relieved. The damage was confined to the dining-room, where the fire started, the back porch and the adjoining bedroom. The loss will probably be covered by $20.

The alarm was turned in at 8:40, while the satisfaction parade was in progress. It was only with great difficulty the engines could make their way through the crowd.

Railway Conductors' Picnic. There will be a big picnic of railroad men and their friends at Verdugo Park on Sunday, June 23, a week from today. Los Angeles Division, No. 111, of the Order of Railway Conductors is giving the picnic in order to raise funds toward defraying the expenses of the meeting of the grand division in Los Angeles on the second Tuesday of May, 1897. There will be dancing in the pavilion. No intoxicants will be sold on the grounds. Everything will be done to make the occasion an entire success. The committee in charge consists of: E. T. Hagaman, J. B. Hartell, George H. Hollis, O. W. Martin and J. W. Benjamin. The round-trip fare, including admission to the park, will be 50 cents.

THE BEAUTIFUL.

Owing to the enthusiastic reception granted the Wilmington Transportation Co.'s "GRAND OPENING" and "HERMOSA" excursion announcement for Saturday and Sunday, June 20th and 21st, the above company has decided to continue this beautiful steamer every day throughout the entire present week, affording all those desiring to escape the depressing weather and monotony of the mainland an opportunity to visit the GEM OF THE PACIFIC, on the most perfect piece of marine architecture on the Coast.

The many amusements of past years added to immeasurably. Fishing, not simply holding a rod or line, but also keeping tally of your "catch." Boating, safe and a pleasure, the most enjoyable (experienced teachers); interesting excursions inland or along the coast. Fastest and most comfortable launches. No better band on the coast.

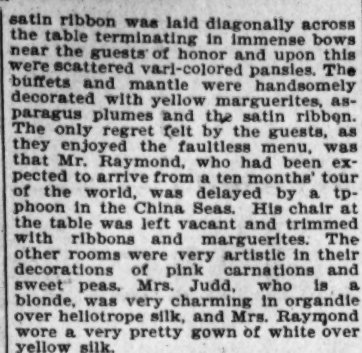

Next Saturday, June 27th, the EVENT OF THE SEASON. No expense spared to make the SATURDAY NIGHT ILLUMINATION (revealing the charms of the beach and bay, wave and town), as inspiring a spectacle as is possible only where nature has been so gracious.

SANTA BARBARA.
Señora Ignacia Manzo de Gallardo made her debut at the Santa Barbara Operahouse on Wednesday evening last, the occasion being a complimentary benefit in her behalf. She was assisted by her husband, Don Manuel Manzo, by her daughter, Mrs. Galtette, by Messrs. Tullier, Martin, Galtette, and tette; George H. Kalthoff, violin, and Miss Carrie Brown, accompanist. The audience was composed of appreciative and cultured people. They pronounced the entire programme enjoyable. They were unanimous in asserting that this new star is the brightest of Santa Barbara's musical constellation. Her accompaniment evoked strong sympathy for the singer, and yet she showed no signs of fatigue, singing from memory the most difficult productions of Gounod, Paderewski, Verdi, Gomez, etc. Her voice was melodious, having unusual range and pathos. Her rendition of "La For-del Destino," "El Guarani," and "Gran Valse" were enchanting. Mrs. G. Icardo was born in Los Angeles July 18, 1894. She has been in the city having traveled two years as a pupil with Angela Peralta. She speaks and sings in four languages, Spanish, French, Italian and English. Mrs. Anna G. Pike shared a joyous vacation with her husband and two young sons. The family spent the two weeks. The days were spent hunting, fishing and reading, while the evenings were taken up with other entertainments. Miss Gustafson and her sister, Sara Bartholomew, who is a school teacher, as the champion with rod and reel, having landed forty-six of the speckled beauties from the mountain streams near the camp. The men of the party were: Mr. and Mrs. A. G. H. McFarlane Carter, Gussie Carter, Belle McFarlane, Alice Carter, Messrs. Carter, Hanford and Messrs. Bates visited the camp. The women and wife and Bates visited the camp.

Some new and taking selections were introduced by the Mountain City Marching Band in the concert on the Arlington lawn Tuesday evening. The "Forest and the Forest" and "Our Four-In-Hands" were especially favorites. The crowd was unusually large.

The Demorest prize medal contest held last Monday evening in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the city. The contest was a very interesting one. The judges were puzzled to know on whom to bestow the medal. The first ballot resulted in a tie between Miss Murrell was the prize was awarded to latter. The contestants were: Miss Muriel Whetstone, Mildred Clark, Alice Cooley, Beulah Smith, Mary Ann Williams, and Mrs. Dan Daniels. The judges were Mr. Carner, Mrs. Shaffer, Mrs. A. H. G. A dancing party of twenty couples was entertained by the High School, Hall and Main, beginning by William Butler and Miss Birdie Bowland. The music was good and dancing continued until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served.

On Tuesday evening the High School class of '96 was entertained by a Chinese dinner at the home of Mrs. W. H. W. Santa Barbara street. Chinese lanterns illuminated the lawn and the floral decorations were gorgeous. Many refreshments were served and the prizes were awarded. Charles Eberle won first while Robert Stewart and Alvin Gray Southwick received consolation prizes. A very enjoyable and pleasant and enjoyable entertainment.

On Wednesday evening a class party was given at the home of Mrs. W. H. W. Santa Barbara street. The hostess was Miss Ethel Wheaton. The hostess was

NEWSPAPER INTERVIEWER.

EDITOR M'CULLAGH OF THE ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT RELATES HIS EXPERIENCE.

He Tells How He Originated This Journalistic Feature and Describes His Famous Talk with Alexander H. Stephens—Some Queer Stories of President Andrew Johnson—How "Little Mac" Gave a President's Views to the Public.

The True Story of Andy Johnson's Drunkenness at His Vice-Presidential Inauguration—Some of His Weaknesses—Exciting Adventures of a War Correspondent—How M'Cullagh Ran the Batteries.
Bravest Man and Bravest Woman.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—There are now more than four hundred newspaper men in St. Louis. During the convention they have telegraphed hundreds of thousands of words of interview matter, and through them nearly every leading Republican of the United States has been a special contributor to the press. At the same time, in his editorial sanctum here, the author of the newspaper interview has been writing his comments upon these opinions, and perhaps at the same time reflecting upon the development of this great journalistic feature, of which he may be called the founder. I refer to J. B. M'Cullagh, now editor-in-chief of the Globe-Democrat, but away back in the '60s, the "Little Mac" who, as Washington correspondent, was the chief medium of communication between President Andrew Johnson and the public. Mr. M'Cullagh has long been noted as one of the brightest of our newspaper men. Born in Ireland, he began his life work as a printer in St. Louis, rising from the case to the reporter's desk. He was a mere boy at the outbreak of the war, but he at once went to the field as a correspondent, and before long was stationed at Washington, sending out news from that point. It was two years after the close of the war that he did his first great work as an interviewer. He was at the time correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, and as such he made a tour through the South, writing up the condition of the different States. During this tour he surprised the press by a three-column talk with Alexander H. Stephens at his home in Georgia. It was the first interview of the kind ever given to the public, and the prominence of Mr. Stephens as ex-Vice-President of the Confederacy and the striking ideas which Mr. M'Cullagh elicited from him created a decided sensation.

INTERVIEWING ALEX STEPHENS.
I had a long chat the other day with Mr. M'Cullagh about some of his early newspaper experiences. During it I asked him as to his first great interview. He replied:
"I had, you know, good letters of introduction, and these gave me a cordial reception. I met Alexander H. Stephens at his home in Georgia. He lived near Crawfordsville, in an old-fashioned two-story frame house, which he called Liberty Hall. There was a station near the house, and I supposed that I should find a tavern there, where I could be accommodated during my stay. When I got off the train I found nothing but an old shanty kept by a negro woman. I asked her if she could tell me where Mass. Alce lived. She showed me the house, and, leaving my valise with her, I walked up through the great lawn filled with forest trees, and knocked at the door. A maid later I met Alexander Stephens and presented my letters. He insisted upon my coming at once to the house. He remained with me for three days, and had several long talks with him. He discussed many matters relating to the South, and gave some striking views as to emancipation and the negro. He told me that he would have emancipated his own slaves long ago, but that he did not know how they could be taken care of. He said that his plantation would not raise enough money to support them, and that they had long cost him more than he was able to get out of them. They did not leave him at the close of the ment throughout the south, and it was questioned by a number of the Southern papers. The Southerners could not mention Jefferson in the same breath with Lincoln. They looked upon Lincoln as an uneducated, illiterate man, and the passions of the war were still too hot for them to give him the credit that they now do. The comments concerning the statement were so many that when I met Mr. Stephens later on at Washington I told him that my report had been disputed and asked him if I had understood him correctly. He replied that he could not remember just what he had said to me, but that I had reported him exactly as he thought, and that as he really did believe that these papers were the greatest he could not see how

ALEXANDER STEPHENS, THE FIRST GREAT MAN INTERVIEWED.

I had gotten the idea if not from his conversation.
INTERVIEWING A PRESIDENT.
"How did you come, Mr. M'Cullagh, to have such close relations with President Johnson?"
"It came from a talk of his which I reported. He noted that the article I wrote expressed his views exactly, and after that he gave me a number of interviews. The first conversation was given by President Johnson without any idea on his part that it would be published. When he had finished I asked him if he had any objections to my using what he had said in the newspapers. He replied that he had not, and when the matter was published he was so pleased with the result that I had easy access to the White House. I always prepared myself upon the subject which I wished the President to discuss before I went, and to a certain extent I had an idea of the answers which I thought he stay in my committee-room over night, and I concluded to sleep there rather than apply to a car. I knew that if I was in the building they would not put me out, and so I stayed. The morning of the inauguration was cold, and a drizzling rain was falling. I spent the time prior to the coming of the crowd with Col. John W. Forney, who was Secretary of the Senate. We were sitting in his room about the fire trying to keep warm, when I saw two men come to the door of the Senate and one of them tried to open it. He shook it and pounded, but no one came, and he finally started away. As he did so Col. Forney looked up, and when he saw me he said: 'Why, that is the Vice-President. We must get him in. Now, it is only about 10:30 o'clock, and the door was still locked. We could not open it, but Col. Forney tapped on the window and called to the two men to come to him. They came up, and I could see that it was Andrew Johnson and his doctor. Johnson looked pale and sick. He was afterward charged that he had been on a spree the night before, and that he had come from his hotel without breakfast to the Capitol.

"I don't know as to this. At any rate, he looked worn out. Well, we opened the door and he came in, and the doctor in. Both Johnson and the doctor were shivering, and the doctor asked Forney if he had any whiskey. There was a black bottle always kept at the time in the secretary's room and Mr. Forney went to a cupboard and got it. He placed it on the mantelpiece and set a tumbler beside it. Vice-President Johnson walked from the fire over to the mantel and poured what seemed to me to be a very big drink. It had never taken much whiskey up to that time, and I did not know how much a good drink was. I could see, however, that the doctor and Mr. Forney thought it was considerable. It was, I judge, about a half-tumbler. Vice-President Johnson swallowed it at almost a gulp, and then came and sat down before the fire. As the flames and the whiskey began to warm his chilled bones I could see his spirits rising like the mercury in a thermometer. He soon became cheerful and gave a very talkative. After a time he stepped up to the mantel and took another drink, though the doctor tried to dissuade him. He pushed the doctor aside with a word of pleasantness and filled the tumbler almost to the full of raw whiskey. This he drank almost as rapidly as he did his first dram, and then went back to the fire. A moment later and it was plain to us that he was intoxicated, and that he was not fit to go into the Senate. In the meanwhile the hour for the inauguration had arrived, and we were told that it was time for us to go. It was but a few steps from Mr. Forney's office to the Senate Chamber. Forney went first and then came Vice-President Johnson and the doctor, myself following up the rear. We entered the Senate Chamber at just about the time for giving the President the oath of office. I was going upstairs to the press gallery. When the oath was administered, Vice-President Johnson stepped forward and made a speech. The Cabinet followed him on one side of him. He turned and addressed each one by name, making a series of remarks, ending in every case with the words 'something like the following: 'And I here tell you, Mr. Seward, Secretary of State, I am a plebeian, a man of the people; and I am proud of it.' He addressed all the other Secretaries in the same way, and made a

As a rule, however, he allowed me to use my own judgment. The Cabinet followed him on one side of him. He turned and addressed each one by name, making a series of remarks, ending in every case with the words 'something like the following: 'And I here tell you, Mr. Seward, Secretary of State, I am a plebeian, a man of the people; and I am proud of it.' He addressed all the other Secretaries in the same way, and made a semi-incoherent drunken speech, notwithstanding the efforts of Forney and others to stop him.

"Do you think, Mr. M'Cullagh, that Andrew Johnson was a great man?" I asked.
"Yes," was the reply. "I would say that he was great if you take him as a politician. He was an educated man, and in some respects a weak one. Still, with it all, he had much rugged strength and he was a greater statesman than he has received the credit of being."
"What were some of his great weaknesses?"
"One was his limited vision. He was, you know, from Tennessee, and he never seemed to appreciate the fact that Tennessee was only a very small part of this great nation. His early struggles were after a reputation and power in his own State. He had to fight hard to be elected to the Legislature, to Governor and the Senate, and to him Tennessee was everything. Even after he became President he looked upon himself as the president of about twenty Tennesseees, and he cared more for the opinion of the richer and better-bred people of Tennessee than he did for the rest of the Union. In seeking to appear well in the eyes of such people he allowed them to use him, not realizing that they despised him for doing so."

THE ADVENTURES OF A WAR CORRESPONDENT.
RESPONDENT.
"You were a correspondent with Grant in the early part of the war, were you not?"
"Yes," replied Mr. M'Cullagh, "I was with him at Fort Donelson and about Vicksburg. I saw a great deal of him until he was called East."

"How did he impress you? Did you realize that he was a great general?"
"No; I did not. Grant was an exceedingly modest man, and the Grant of the close of the war was a very different man than the Grant of the beginning. He grew very rapidly. He developed through the experience of the war to look at war through other than his West Point spectacles. He saw that each battle had its own rules of action, and he laid out his plans irrespective of those fixed in the military books. Gen. Sherman, on the other hand, was a born tactician. He was a general in the old army. He acted as though he was always marching with a brass band behind him, and he usually wanted to stop and lay out a diagram upon the lines of which to move before he started."

RUNNING THE BATTERIES OF VICKSBURG.
"You were on the steamer Queen of the West when she went past the Vicksburg batteries. That must have been an exciting experience," said I.
"Yes, it was," replied Mr. M'Cullagh.

"We wanted to get below Vicksburg to cut off the supplies from coming up the river. We had expected to start in the early morning, but there was some delay, and it was nearly noon before we got off. There were seven miles of those batteries, and as we went down the river in front of them they all opened fire upon us. Cannon balls and shells whizzed about our boat. We put round our dish with two rows of conserved cherries."

"Novan Cream Ice. Stir into one pint of cream three wineglasses of Novan, add sugar to taste and a few drops of lemon juice. After freezing, serve. Any other liquid, such as cream, menthe, benedictine, chartreuse, or maraschino may be substituted for the Novan."

Orange Flower Ice Cream. Beat the yolks of three eggs and mix with them one quart of cream. Place on the stove and stir until it comes to a boil. Remove and add six ounces of powdered sugar and three teaspoonfuls of orange-flower water. Pour the whole into a freezer.

Ice Cups. Fill twelve flat champagne glasses or small tumblers with fruit syrup—raspberry, strawberry or cherry—and pack them in a tub of pounded ice, and salt. Cover the tub with a cloth, and leave it thirty minutes so that the syrup may be frozen around the edge of the glass. Pour out what remains of the liquid, and fill the cavity with vanilla ice cream or a liquor. Serve instantly.

Cherry Ice. Remove the stones from two pounds of ripe red cherries and put them into a saucepan with one quart of water. Allow it to come to a boil, then put the mixture in the freezer, adding the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Drop on each glass a spoonful of the mixture, and strew them into the freezer, serving.

Apple Ice. Cut fifteen good cooking apples, peel and stew with half a pint of water, half a stick of vanilla, and two tablespoons of sugar. Boil on a quick fire and pass through a fine sieve. Into this apple puree pour a wine of syrup, or liquor, add the juice of three oranges, and freeze. Serve in glasses.

Apricot Ice. Stew for a few moments one pound of chopped apricots in a pint of water with half a pound of sugar. Rub the fruit through a strainer into the freezer, and when nearly frozen, add the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Cut up a few ripe apricots, and strew them into the freezer, serving.

ESTHER SINGLETON.

Los Angeles a Good Second.

(Oakland Echoes) Twenty years ago the principal cities of California ranged in population as follows: San Francisco, 250,000; Oakland, 32,000; Sacramento, 25,000; San Jose, 18,000; Los Angeles, 16,000; Stockton, 10,000; Vallejo, 9,000; Santa Rosa, 7,000; Santa Cruz, 6,000; Santa Barbara, 6,000; Grass Valley, 6,000. Los Angeles has forged ahead at a far greater rate than any city on the Coast, and now stands second in the list, while a dozen or more cities have sprung up, each with a population exceeding that of Grass Valley.

She Was All Right.

(Texas Sifter) "Have you a magnificent wardrobe?" asked the manager addressing the actress who had just applied for a part. "Why, no," she replied. "I have no wardrobe at all. I'm in the bureau line, you know."

And she was engaged on the spot.

What a Brute.

(Church Progress) "Distracted Young Mother (traveling with a crying infant). Denial! I don't know what to do with this baby."

Kind and Thoughtful Bachelor (in the next seat). Shall I open the window for you, madam?

Not Lost First Place.

(Yonkers Statesman) Crimshawd, I see the horse had not lost his prestige entirely.

Yeast. How so?

"I read in the paper yesterday that they hung a man down in Texas for stealing a mustang, and only gave a fellow thirty days for 'pinching' a bicycle."

About the THEATERS

Devotees of vaudeville are having things their own way these days as the local vaudeville house is the only theater open. It has been given a fine grade of entertainment, too, and promises still better to come. The bill for this week contains more women performers than any show ever before given at this house and several of the acts have been billed as top-liners all over the country. Miss Herwig, the celebrated Wagnerian singer, will be the central luminary around whom will be gathered a constellation of rare brilliancy. Miss Herwig comes to this city with a magnificent reputation as a dramatic soprano, attained in the highest musical circles of Europe. She is one of the few California artists who have succeeded in establishing themselves favorably before the critical judges of the old country. In private life she is known as Mrs. Bluet, wife of Dr. W. K. Bluet, a prominent citizen of Oakland. She has just finished a six years' course in music in Germany where she was called upon many times to sing before the nobility. Miss Herwig will present the vaudeville stage the classic music of the great Wagner. She has already scored a triumph in other cities by singing these high-grade selections, and it is as good as assured that she will meet with equal success when she submits her work for the approval of a Los Angeles audience.

McAvoy and May are a strong team of comedy sketch artists. They are said to present one of the most varied turns of any couple on the stage. McAvoy and May are too well known to the variety stage to need further introduction. They are everywhere considered the best of entertainers and will undoubtedly win recognition here.

Another of the new attractions is Lizzie B. Raymond, the well-known serio-comic. A Boston paper in speaking of her says: "Miss Lizzie B. Raymond, who appeared at the Howard Auditorium last week, is a great favorite here, where she never fails to make a decided hit with her clever rendition of popular songs. She is strikingly handsome, graceful and a comedian of the first few equals. Miss Raymond holds a foremost position in her line of specialty, that of character vocalist and she has won it by hard work, genuine ability and the fact that she never fails to please."

Few artists who have appeared in Los Angeles have made such a decided hit as the wonderful little mind-reader, Virginia Aragon. All last week she crowded the house. She was the talk of the town and she certainly deserves all the favorable comment she received. Her reengagement will greatly add to the new bill.

Of all the burlesque artists that have shown here, none ever presented a more thoroughly enjoyable show than Le Clair and Leslie. Their work is characterized by a cleverness that is seldom seen among this class of performers. For several weeks they have been a new act, "Cleopatra Up to Date," which is said to be loaded with side-splitting fun. In it Le Clair gives an opportunity to introduce his female impersonations to the best advantage. Leslie will also give a new repertoire of imitations of great actors and comedians to those with which he delighted every one last week.

Collins and Collins made a splendid hit with their finished clog dancing and breezy parodies. They are good singers and they furnish a refined specialty that is very enjoyable. Their new turn gives promise of being an excellent one.

The musical specialty of Mlle. Carrie is the best of its kind. She has a good classic music out of the bells and she does it in a most bewitching manner.

It is safe to predict for the new bill a rousing reception, for there is everything to recommend it to the favorable consideration of the general public.

THE BUNCH LIGHT.
Kathryn Kidder is spending the summer in Paris.
Marie Wainwright will support Wilton Lackaye next season.
Jerome K. Jerome's new play, "Billard's," was a failure in London.
Virginia Harned will be Robert Hillard's leading lady next season.
May Irwin, the massive comedienne, will spend the summer in Europe.
Fanny Davenport is to have a new play by an American author next season.

Joseph Jefferson and family have settled down for the summer at Buzzards Bay.
Cuban dramas are bobbing up plentifully since the production of "The Last Stroke."
H. Gratton Donnelly is writing for Nellie McHenry a piece to be called "A Night in New York."
Della Fox is now howling her call for the Queen of Comic Opera. Still, there is Lillian Russell.

Timothy Murphy has joined Keith's continuous ranks in New York, giving imitations of Henry Irving as Malvolio.
Lewis Morrison has purchased from McKee Rankin "The Settling Sun," which was first produced thirteen years ago.
Robert and Julia Marlowe, Taber called for London last week. They will open their next season in St. Paul in September.
A trio of talented San Francisco girls recently joined the Daly Company in that city—Gerda Wismer, Daisy Sharp and Mabelle Gilman.
Edwin Milton Royle and wife (Selma Fetter) will spend the summer in Europe, and will not open their next tour until November.
Lola Fuller will open her brief Pacific Coast tour on the 29th inst., and in October she begins an engagement at the Folies Bergeres, Paris.
Sara Bernhardt is an occasional contributor to the more or less meritorious periodical issued by her son, Maurice, and called "Nineteen Hundred."

Maurice Barrymore, who will open at Palmer's Theater, New York, next November, has his own play, "Roaring Dick & Co.," is spending the summer in England.
Manager Ira J. La Motte has made his first stroke of enterprise in connection with Clay Clemens' tour, offering a prize for a twenty-four sheet poster stand.
Peter F. Daly will next season be seen in a new farce comedy which John J. McNally, author of "The Widow Jones," is now writing for him, and which is to be called "A Good Thing."
The Academie Francaise has bestowed a prize of 4,000 upon M. Hervieux for his play, "Les Tenebres," produced last year at the Comedie Francaise with indifferent success.
Martha Morton's new play for Grand has been provisionally called "Sunset." This title has done service for other dramatists, notably the late Charles Gaylor and Jerome K. Jerome.

Miss Eme Berlinger appears to have made an unusually deep impression in London by her performance of Romeo. It is to be hoped this will not induce Julia Marlowe to try the change.

Martin W. Hanley will place on the stage next season a new play by Edgar Selden, called "Fun in Shanty-town." Edgar Hanley, Mr. Hanley's star for so many years, will not act next season.

Hans Olden's play, "Meine Onkelin Frau," said to be an adaptation of "My Official Wife," has been forbidden at the Carl Theater, Vienna, the author fearing that the plot would offend Russia.

(Boston Times.) Now is the time when every actor and actress announces that he or she will summer in Europe. Some of them get no nearer Europe than Maine but keep hidden until the season opens.

"Wang" will tour the country again next season. His sixth. With the exception of "Robin Hood," it has earned more money than any opera produced in this country. Al Hirt, a very tall comedian with a deep bass voice, plays the Siamese Monarch. He has played it for two seasons.

An Australian paper records this message, sent by an antipodean manager to one of his actors: "My Dear Sir: Your performance last night was most excellent. Several of the audience have written demanding that their names be removed from the free list."

A London cablegram announces that Charles and Daniel Frohman have secured the dramatic rights of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's "A Lady of Quality." Mrs. Burnett is dramatizing her story, and the play will be produced in New York in the autumn.

The two interesting midgets, the Roscos brothers, who created such a deal of fun at the Orpheum two months ago, will again appear at this house. They are announced for the 29th of this month, when they will give a week of their unique sort of entertainment.

Charles B. Ward, the original Bowery Boy, and author of the "Bad Play" and other popular songs, is greatly pleased with the play Manager Brady has had written for him. After reading the manuscript, Charles exclaimed, "Hully gee, but dat ain't no jobster, see!"

George Alexander announces that he has acquired the dramatic rights to Mr. Merriman's novel, "The Sowers." He has also commissioned Justin Huntly McCarthy to prepare for him a new version of the play which Charles Fichter made so famous under the title of "The Duke's Motto."

The coming event in theatrical circles will be the appearance of Papina at the Orpheum on the 29th. Papina is a single dancer of the lanky-toe type, but when she is seen on the stage she lines up as a whole corps de ballet, and with mirror and electric light effects presents a dazzlingly beautiful specialty.

The "Tribby" company, which William A. Brady sent to Australia, has made a great success in that country. In October, they will be back here on a twenty-two weeks' tour. The company will return to the United States and open the American tour in San Francisco in October. There will be but one "Tribby" company on the road next season.

Blanche Walsh has confided to the San Francisco newspaper troubles by denying that she ever denounced San Francisco as a "jay town." The emigrant sister, James J. Corbett, is still under the ban for echoing this remark.

The stage of the American Theater, New York, is given up to a revival of Gilbert & Sullivan operas this summer. The company includes Dorothy Morton, Flora Finlayson, William McLaughlin, Joseph Sheehan, Charles Drew and J. G. Bell.

The Paris Eclair's beauty contest for actresses has resulted in the choice of the dancer, Mlle. Cleo de Merode, as the handsomest woman on the French stage. She received 3078 votes; Sibyl Sanderson, 2295; Mlle. Wanda de Bonca, 1894. Other winners in New York several years ago, and recently has scandalized Paris and St. Petersburg with her debauch, her bogus jewels, and her protectors, received 730 votes. Meiba got but 151 votes, Calve only 22, and Bernhardt but 4 of the 10,000 cast.

Gabrielle Rejane was born in Paris in 1867. She was the daughter of a comedian who became manager of the Theater Ambigu. Rejane bore the name of Gabrielle Reja until the beginning of her stage career. She entered the Conservatoire at the age of 15, and was graduated there in 1874, the pupil of Regnier, and winner of a second prize in comedy. Mme. Rejane is the wife of Paul Forel, the ex-director of the Odéon, and the Eden theaters, and the co-manager, with Mitchell Carré, of the Vaudeville.

(Chicago Inter Ocean.) Jessie Bartlett Davis had an engagement down town Thursday afternoon. Will J. Davis had an engagement at Willowdale Thursday morning. His wife had to leave him when the train brought him back in the afternoon except for the fact that he left in the morning before she was dressed. When she was dressed and ready to take the L train for downtown, she found she had no money. She appealed to her husband, but he had no money. The servants were without any change, and it was a new neighborhood for the prima donna. Railway tickets cost cents and are sold for cash. So Jessie did not keep her appointment. But she had the best laugh she has had since she parted company with "Dr. Barnum."

(Dunlap's Stage News.) This is how Cheever Goodwin became a dramatist: "I took my degree in 1873, but never practiced law. Why? Because I met E. E. Rice and wrote the burlesque 'Evangeline,' for which he supplied the music. Ned was at that time the agent for the Cohan line at Cambridge. One evening we went to see Lydia Thompson, and were both disgusted with the burlesque which she had brought to appear that evening. In the car on our way home I remarked that I thought I was going to write a better burlesque myself. Ned said: 'Why don't you?' I'll write the music." So I sketched out the plot of a burlesque on Longfellow's "Evangeline." Then I wrote the lyrics and numerous songs, and Ned supplied the melodies. Meanwhile I had become a reporter at $15 a week in the Boston Traveler. Ned and I were both members of the Papyrus Club, a jolly Bohemian set, and from time to time we tried the songs from "Evangeline" on our fellow members. They became wildly enthusiastic over our operatic gems, and learned them by heart. When the song "We Are Six Miserable Pirates," they fairly made Boston howl."

A Rare Coin.
(Chicago Inter Ocean.) Last week a gold penny was sold by auction in London for no less than $1250. This rare and interesting coin was knocked down to Spink of Piccadilly, who thus became the proud possessor of a coin of which only three other specimens are known. This penny was made by King Henry III. in the year 1257, of the finest gold, which weighed two sterling, and will that it should be current for twenty pence. The coin was, however, decanted in the same year as it became current, and only four are now known to be left, two of which are in the British Museum.

GOOD THIRTEEN STORY.

A Man Whose Whole Life Ran to Thirteens.

(Toledo Blade.) Rev. M. F. Chapman, an aged retired Baptist minister of Andover, Ct., was one of thirteen children. He was born on the 13th of the month. His wife and three of his children were also born on the 13th of the month. When 13 years of age, he, with his father's family, moved from Preston to North Stonington, and became near neighbors to two families, each consisting of thirteen children. During the war he invested $1300 in 8 per cent. gold bonds, all he had at the time, and later going to Williamantic to increase his investment, he found a broker who had just $1300 of the same kind of bonds, which he purchased. He sold the gold interest first paid on his bonds for 13 per cent. premium. When he went to Andover he applied at the postoffice for a box and found them all rented but No. 13, which he secured. On his first visit to the Baptist Church he was seated in pew 13 by an usher, and has ever since held the same pew, although the numbers have all been removed. He further remarks that he is now living in one of the original thirteen States, and in the only county in that State (Tolland) made up of exactly thirteen towns. Mr. Chapman is now 73 years of age and is in comparative good health.

A Great Island Sold.
(New York Journal.) Henry Menier, a wealthy manufacturer, has just closed a remarkable real estate transaction in the purchase of the Island of Anticosti, which lies in the mouth of the St. Lawrence River. The island is 135 miles long by thirty-five miles at its widest part and has an area of over four thousand square miles. The encyclopedia describes it as of rocky and swampy formation and with a population of about three hundred French-speaking fisher folk. The purchase price was $100,000. Mr. Menier intends to spend $500,000 in the development of the island, which he intends to colonize with Frenchmen.

Its forests are large and valuable. Sawmills will be put up, agriculture will be developed, lobster canneries will be erected near the coast, but the most ambitious effort will be the establishment of a model beaver farm, in which the projector thinks there is a fortune. The island remains subject to the British authorities politically, but Mr. Menier will conduct its internal affairs on the lines followed by the British chartered companies of India, Africa and the great Northwest.

Inventors Should not Marry.
(Chicago Inter Ocean.) A New York paper advises artists, musicians, and authors to marry, but says "inventors should remain single. The first three must realize that a woman's influence, and be led by their love to finer achievement, but an inventor has so intense a nature with so much in it of wild, passionate quality, that giving himself to a woman he might lose, he would give everything, and so take everything from the chosen field. I do not think you can name any great inventions that have been made by married men." It is just as true of inventors as artists and musicians, that they have seldom amounted to much until married. Edison, Bell, Stephenson, Watt, Whitney, Fulton, Maxim and Ericsson were all married men at the time of making their great discoveries.

The coming event in theatrical circles will be the appearance of Papina at the Orpheum on the 29th. Papina is a single dancer of the lanky-toe type, but when she is seen on the stage she lines up as a whole corps de ballet, and with mirror and electric light effects presents a dazzlingly beautiful specialty.

Fits Cured.
(From U. S. Journal of Medicine.)
Prof. W. H. Peake, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living physician. His success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 50 years standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their postoffice and express address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address PROF. W. H. PEAKE, P. O. & Cadillac, New York.

The Story of Dr. Shores's Success

True medical skill and experience tells the grand old story of Dr. Shores's success. Dr. Shores tells you what ails you, and cures you, and has only one price for the millionaire and the laboring man—$5 per month, all medicines free. Doctors who have investigated will tell you Dr. Shores's treatment for catarrh is the best known to modern medical science. Climatic conditions materially affect the action of drugs on the human system. Dr. Shores has carefully studied our climate, and applies this knowledge in the treatment of his thousands of patients. That is why he cures men, women and children who have vainly spent thousands on other doctors here and in Europe. If you have catarrh, or any chronic disease, if your kidneys or liver are not working normally, a common complaint in this climate, come to Dr. Shores and he will cure you. Read the testimony of home people, and they will tell you Dr. Shores' treatment cures.

SUFFERED FOR EIGHTEEN YEARS.

Mrs. Lillie Geldert Grateful to Dr. Shores For Her Restored Health.

"Yes, regard Dr. Shores's Treatment as simply wonderful," said Mrs. Lillie Geldert, the fashionable dressmaker, at 726 South Broadway. "I suffered with Catarrh of the head and throat for eighteen years, and suffered dreadfully. In a few weeks' treatment under Dr. Shores I feel like a new woman. I could not have believed it possible that he could have made such a change in my condition in so short a time."

GENIUS PAYS TRIBUTE TO DR. SHORES' SKILL

The Silver-haired Poet Prophet of the People, James G. Clark, of Pasadena, Cured by Dr. Shores.

Free Trial Treatment.

So confident is Dr. Shores that he can cure Catarrh and Chronic Diseases, even in its worst forms, that a cordial invitation is extended to all persons suffering from this disease, or from cough, asthma, or any lung trouble, to call at his office in the Redick Block for a free examination and a free trial local treatment.

The Poet JAMES G. CLARK, Linda Vista Ranch, Pasadena.

"The wealth of poetic imagery, strength and deep penetration which characterizes the recent work of Mr. Clark," says B. O. Flower, the distinguished editor of The Arena magazine, "is very noticeable in some of his later poems, and reaches altitudes of sublimity in thought rare among modern poets. The name of James G. Clark is a household word in America and England as the author of 'The Old Mountain Tree,' 'Meet Me By The Running Brook,' 'Leona,' 'The Evergreen Mountains of Life.' Mr. Clark is a poet whose verses have reached the common heart of the people, whose songs have been sung in every clime. His volume of 'Poetry And Song' takes rank with the best work of Longfellow, Bryant and Whittier, and won for him the title 'The Tom Moore of America' from the gifted N. P. Willis, who was his friend. Mr. Clark's name has been woven into the warp of American history as the friend of Abraham Lincoln, and during his memorable campaign Mr. Clark sang songs of his own by the side of Father Abraham on the public platform. His poem, 'The Evergreen Mountains of Life,' is a wondrous, symmetrical word mosaic, pure and classic in its rhythmic cadence."

"There's a land far away, 'mid the stars, we are told,
Where they know not the sorrows of Time;
Where the pure waters wander through valleys of gold,
And life is a treasure sublime."

James G. Clark has been under the treatment of Dr. Shores, and this is what he says: "During 1893 I had a severe attack of Grip, which left me with a tendency to take cold easily, and finally terminated in a bronchial difficulty that began to affect my voice. On May 5th I commenced treatment with Dr. Shores, who gave me relief from the very first. Today my friends tell me that my voice is better than it has been at any time since I came to the coast, six years ago. Dr. Shores's treatment has benefited my general health, and I feel that I have a new lease of life."

"JAMES G. CLARK."

GAINED TWELVE POUNDS.

Orion Curtis Tells of His Marvelous Recovery Under Dr. Shores's Expert Treatment.

Orion B. Curtis, a dairyman at Twenty-fifth street and Central avenue, adds his testimony this week to Dr. Shores's masterful treatment. He says: "I have suffered for two years with Catarrh in its worst form. In one month under Dr. Shores' treatment all disagreeable symptoms have disappeared, and have gained twelve pounds. Am a happy man now and advise all my friends to go to Dr. Shores if they are sick and suffering."

WOMEN AND BOATS.

THE SUMMER GIRL AND HER DELIGHTFUL CANOE.

There is a vast deal of independence, fun and good health in cruising during these long warm days.

(CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.)

For real, rollicking, exciting fun the summer girl has decided that nothing compares with canoeing.

The canoe itself is a fascinating, bewitching little craft, in its beauty and gracefulness, and appeals to a woman's aesthetic sensibilities as no other boat can.

pounds, is 10½ feet in length, has a 26-inch beam, is made of cedar with oak ribs, and will carry eighty pounds, and one's "duffle," i.e., kit or few personal belongings.

It costs $65, and can be transported as freight for $5 within a distance of 150 miles.

As to paddles, where there is a small channel, a single blade is used; a double blade for heavy waters. The single blade should be quite stiff, with very little spring to the blade and handle; the double blade should be about eight or nine feet long, with a joint in the middle, so it can be taken apart and stowed below when not in use.

The blades should be comparatively long and not very wide to get the best effect with the least effort. Just here a word to the wise—always take an extra paddle with you, for fear you break one.

The water from the blades is apt to run down the round of the paddle to the run to pedals in the bottom of the canoe against which the feet rest, and by this means a slight movement of one foot or the other steers the canoe, thus relieving the arms of considerable work, especially in rough water.

The canoe is very steady and not at all likely to upset when the paddler is sitting down, as the weight is then so placed that the center of gravity is very low, much more so than in a row boat, in which the oarsmen sit on a seat near the level of the gunwale and far above the water-line. A little practice in getting afloat and ashore at the beginning will help the beginners to avoid an upset, which, of course, is discouraging and should not be on the programme.

To learn the art of "feathering" join the two parts of the paddle with the blade at right angles to each other, so that the blade in the air at each stroke presents its edge to the wind—"feath-and mind. Take every advantage of eddies and slack water along shore when paddling up stream or against the tide.

Possibly the summer girl's affections do not run to canoes; she, perchance, prefers a punt or a skiff.

Punts are not common in this country, although they flourish in England. The English girl fairly dotes upon these "double-end scows," as some one rather disrespectfully styles a punt, and life to them without a punt is tame indeed. The rowboat or the skiff takes its place in this country, and I can assure any one who thinks of investing in one of these craft, that they are fitted, this season, in an up-to-date style that leaves absolutely nothing to be desired—and nothing to be feared; for the little cork-covered cushions are stuffed with cork and are angels in disguise, so to speak. A cushion in times of peace and smooth sailing; a life preserver, in case of accident. Could anything be more delightful? Your boat upsets—as boats will, owing to the total depravity inherent in some inanimate things—you seize that pretty pale-blue corduroy cushion, hold it before you and float calmly and peacefully to shore, with blessings upon the head of the clever inventor!

Not only are the seats made comfortable with these cushions, but wicker backs are provided; these make a life on the ocean wave as easy as when reclining at home upon a luxurious divan; a carpet—of Wilton or Brussels—covers the floor of the boat.

The St. Lawrence skiff, it is called, and it is one of the easiest-rowing boats ever built. It is fitted with sails, if desired, and an expert in sailing can do all the steering by shifting her weight by taking in or paying out the sheet, so carefully have the lines of the craft been studied out. These boats run from fifteen to twenty feet in length and cost about $85. When provided with sailing gear, canvas, oars, seats, cushions and carpet, the cost is $145.

If expense is an object, for less than half the price, or $45, a rowboat can be purchased; it will weigh ninety pounds, and one can fit it up prettily and comfortably with "home-made" things—cushions, seat-backs, carpets and the like.

KATHERINE KING.

PADDLING THEIR OWN CANOES.

Then one is so independent in her little open or decked canoe, although there is plenty to do, both for head and hands; she must act as crew, captain, pilot and ballast; must look out for shells, boats, driftwood and waves. The canoe of which the maiden of '96 makes a selection weighs only eighteen hands; to prevent this drip, little cups of rubber, "drip cups," have been invented; these are put on the round of the paddle, just below the blade at each end.

In regard to steering gear, paddling canoes are sometimes fitted with a rudder, from the head of which lines ers—in other words. A slight turn of the wrist, at each stroke, accomplishes the result. It would be found far easier to paddle against a breeze when feathering.

The wind you cannot control, therefore learn to paddle against it, with the least friction of paddle, canoe, body

B. T. WASHINGTON.

Interview with the Noted Colored Educator of the Black Belt.

His Experience with White People in His Travels.

The Outlook for the Colored Man in the South—Many New Recognitions in Business Circles of the Country.

Since Frederick Douglass was a new figure in American public life no colored man has made so deep an impression in this country as Booker T. Washington, the principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, which is located in the heart of the Black Belt of Alabama. To those interested in the larger educational problems of the country Mr. Washington has been known for several years as a person very earnest in the advocacy and practical application of the idea that the negroes of the South needed industrial rather than academic education. To this view he converts pretty nearly all with whom he comes in contact, for he is a man whose earnest common-sense is almost hypnotic in its magnetism. But it was not until the Atlanta Exposition was opened last winter that he achieved national renown. Then, speaking for his race and people, he made a plea of such singular eloquence that all who heard him were carried away in feeling and moved to sympathy with his unselfish ambitions. The next day every paper in the United States had a report of his great speech and Booker T. Washington was famous.

Since then he has been chosen as one of the delegates to represent the Republicans of Alabama in the St. Louis convention and selected to make one of the nominating speeches.

I had known Mr. Washington well for several years and was curious to see what effect his success would have upon him. For I was aware that colored folk were not less capable than we in a crop of vanity; but he was all unchanged. The truth is that he is too much of a man to be spoiled by success or flattery. His ability, I think, is that of abundant common-sense rather than any flashing brilliancy, and common sense is vanity's best antidote.

I asked Mr. Washington to relate some of his experiences with white people and to tell me whether colored men were treated any better in the North than in the South. He said:

"I find that a colored man who possesses education and property and character is treated with about as much respect by the southern white people as a white man under similar circumstances. A good and forceful illustration of this occurred a few days ago in the city of Montgomery, Ala., where the butchers of the city organized themselves into a club for the furthering of their interests. While a majority of the butchers are white southern men, still two of the members are colored men, both former slaves. In the organization it is interesting to note that one of the colored men was made chairman of the Committee on Rules and another of an important committee. This recognition of these colored men came about from the fact that by their energy and industry, coupled with common-sense, they had secured such a large proportion of the trade of the city of Montgomery that it was not possible for them to be left out of this organization and its purpose carried out; so colored people all through the South will receive such recognition in proportion as they make themselves felt in the business world. A man is not going to be invited to join a business organization unless he has business that makes him of value in the commercial world. Of course a colored man is not taken into the families in a strictly social way in the same way that a white man is, but such social intercourse is a matter of mutual convenience and of itself no sensible man worries about that. There are many things in connection with public travel and other public conveniences that are very annoying at present to the colored people, but I believe all of these will pass away in proportion as the colored people become educated and refined. I believe that the forcing of the colored people to ride in a 'Jim Crow' car that is far inferior to that used by the white people is a matter that cannot stand much longer against the increasing intelligence and prosperity of the colored people."

"You ask me for some of my personal experiences in connection with my travels. My main work of course is on the grounds of Tuskegee. While this is true, especially within the last twelve months, I have been kept away from the school work a good deal by lectures and talks in various parts of the country. While speaking of these lectures, I might add that invitations to speak are literally poured upon me from all parts of the country. Were I to accept one-half of the invitations I receive I would not remain on the school grounds a single day, but I tell you that Tuskegee and its work must be first with me, and I only speak at places where I can have an opportunity of serving the cause of the colored people in some way. I have received recently very tempting offers from the various lecture bureaus to put myself at their disposal for public lectures; but these I have refused. Speaking of traveling in the South, while in most of the Southern States there is a separation made in the cars so far as white and colored people are concerned, I have found no trouble in securing accommodations in the Pullman palace cars, and while there is a conscious and testing fact in connection with this, is that, while for the ten years that I have ridden in the Pullman palace cars with Southern white people, I have not in the slightest manner been insulted or been treated in an ungentlemanly way by them. This I think grows out of the fact that only the most refined Southern men and women patronize the Pullman palace cars."

"A great deal of stress is often laid upon the importance of educating the masses of the colored people in order to solve the problem in the South. Equally as much stress should be laid upon educating the masses of the poor white people because until the masses of the poor whites are educated there cannot be the greatest peace and harmony between the two races. In all my contact and experience with various classes of white people in all parts of the country, I have invariably found that it is the ignorant and poorly educated white people who are inclined to turn up their noses at the negro; there is no difference in this respect between the northern and southern white people—I mean that the ignorant and poor white man whether North or South seems to have a certain amount of contempt for the negro, while the prosperous and intelligent white man is much more inclined to treat the negro in the way that one man treats another."

"My experience is that the greater a man is the more easy he is to approach. I have had the privilege of meeting President Cleveland, Vice-President Stevenson and all the members of the Cabinet. Only a few days ago while riding on the train in the South, one of the members of President Cleveland's Cabinet heard that I was on the train and he voluntarily sought me out and introduced himself and made himself most agreeable during the entire journey. A few days ago while in New York City I was invited to dine with Chauncey M. Depew, and I saw nothing about him to indicate that my color was in any degree offensive to him. A few days ago when I was in the city of Baltimore I was invited by the Mayor of that city to be his guest while in that city. I accepted of the invitation, not out of egotistic spirit, but simply to show that the time is fast coming when colored people will be appreciated and respected in all parts of the country just in proportion as they make themselves felt in the business world. I am a man of value—commercially and industrially. I emphasize industrial education because I think history teaches that after all commerce is the great forerunner of peace and civilization."

Depew's Notable Collection.
(Chicago Tribune.) Chauncey M. Depew has a notable collection of presents given to him by the Prince of Wales, Queen Victoria, Bismarck and notables of the world. When I go away in the summer, I shall take with me a few of these presents, as mementos of our acquaintance, is the most natural thing in the world. I think I have gifts from every country in the world, and from all the celebrated people about whom the world is talking today."

His Stand Clearly Defined.
(Puck.) "You're for free silver, I see," remarked Bronson as he turned over his salary to the affable hold-up. "Yes," responded Depew, "I am for free silver, but I am for a high wall of protection. And with a Bland smile he backed into the darkness."

THE MOST FOR THE LEAST MONEY.
The opportunity is here offered city patrons of The Times to read all the leading magazines and periodicals each month at trifling cost. For $1 per month is offered the Daily and Sunday Times and all of the following list of publications:

American Wheelman, Munsey's, Argosy, Midland Monthly, Art de la Mode, Monthly Illustrations, Art Amateur, New England, Art Interchange, Nickell, Atlantic Monthly, Northern American Review, Outlook, Century, Overland Monthly, Pall Mall, Cosmopolitan, Popular Science Monthly, Current Literature, Demorest, Delicieux, Recluse, Review of Reviews (American edition), Review of Reviews (English edition), Forum, Round Table (Harvard), Scribner's, Scientific American, Sportsman's Review, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Magazine, Household News, Standard Delineator, Judge Quarterly, Ladies Home Journal, La Mode, Lippincott's, Magazine of Art, McClure's, McClure's Young Men's Companion, Musical Courier.

The Times is glad to be the medium through which its city patrons (it is impossible to extend the offer to out-of-town subscribers) will be enabled to read all of the leading weekly and monthly periodicals at trifling cost.

HOW IT IS DONE.
By the payment of 25 cents extra per month every city subscriber to The Times is entitled to the privilege of reading at home the entire list of publications above referred to. A sufficient number of the periodicals will be kept in stock by the Broadway News Company, which is the Los Angeles Depot of the N. Y. K. system, and located at No. 415 Broadway, to supply all demands of subscribers who have paid the 25 cents in addition to the regular monthly subscription. Patrons of The Times who desire to accept this offer should call at the subscription department in the basement of The Times building and pay the necessary 25 cents, which will entitle them to the privilege of reading the whole list.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

Some Details of the First Republican Convention.

(Chicago Inter Ocean.) The first National Republican Convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President met in Philadelphia June 17, 1856. Edward D. Morgan called the convention to order, and nominated Robert Emmett of New York for chairman. On the first formal ballot Fremont received the full vote of the convention, except twenty-three votes from Pennsylvania and fourteen from Ohio for McLean, one from Pennsylvania for Seward, and forty-five from Virginia not cast for any candidate. No nominating speeches were made. On the 18th of June the convention balloted for a candidate for Vice-President. On the informal ballot William L. Dayton of New Jersey received 250 votes; Abraham Lincoln of Illinois, 110; David Wilcox of Pennsylvania, 45; Charles Sumner of Massachusetts, 35; Henry Wilson of Massachusetts, 15. On the first formal ballot the votes of Lincoln, Wilcox, Sumner and Banks were transferred to Dayton, and he was nominated.

The platform adopted June 17 declared that Congress had sovereign power over the Territories, and that it was its right and duty to prohibit in the Territories those twin relics of barbarism, polygamy and slavery; denied the authority of Congress or any Territorial Legislature to give legal existence to slavery in any Territory; declared that Kansas should be admitted immediately to the Union; pronounced in favor of a railroad to the Pacific Ocean; facts of appropriations for the improvement of rivers and harbors and against legislation impairing the security of the Constitutional guarantees of liberty of conscience and equality of rights.

New York was represented in the convention by six delegates—large, and three delegates from each of the thirty-three Congress districts; in all, 105. Illinois had six delegates at-large (among them George Schneider of Chicago), and twenty-seven district delegates (among them Abraham Lincoln and Owen Lovejoy). Among the delegates from Maine was James G. Blaine.

Some Wealthy Women.
(Chicago Times-Herald.) Mary Garrett lives in a palatial mansion in Baltimore, a notable feature of which is a most magnificent conservatory. Among the not small army of servants in this establishment is a French cook who receives an annual salary of $5000. Miss Garrett is not only a good student, speaking four languages, but she is also a good business woman. She is familiar with the management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which her father founded and from whom presumably she received her $200,000. The largest part of her income is devoted to charity. She recently established a home at Bryn Mawr, in which indigent girls can prepare for college. She is ever ready to assist where poverty is an obstacle in the path of rising genius.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts, inherited from her grandfather Countess a fortune now estimated at $20,000,000. Her years now number more than four score. She resides at Holly Lodge, a suburb of London, in which she was married to William Ashmead Bartlett, now William Ashmead Bartlett Burdett-Coutts, as he took her name at the marriage. He is thirty-seven years her junior. In 1871 she was raised to the peerage in honor of her public beneficence, and is noted for munificent charities.

The Marquise de Roda has been twice married. Her first husband, Gen. Barrios, was assassinated in Guatemala when she was but 30 years of age, and left her seven children and $15,000,000. She removed to New York and resided there, until her marriage with Marquis de Roda. She now lives in Spain. She is a handsome brunette and an accomplished performer on the harp. Napoleon's Ink Wiper. Napoleon was a hero to his valet, Constant, though he sadly married the servant's efforts to dress him neatly. Says the valet:

"His breeches were always of white cashmere. But two hours after leaving his chamber it often happened that he would all spotted with ink, thanks to his habit of wiping his pen on their clothing. He would then turn to me, striking his pen against the table. 'Stowever,' as he pressed in the morning for the whole day, he did not change his toilet on that account, but rubbed in this state until night. 'The whole inside of his boots were lined with white flannel. Whenever one of his legs itched, he rubbed it with the heel of the boot or shoe with which the other leg was shod, thus heightening the effect of the spilled ink.'"

THEY GO TO GODIN'S.

Almost every real stylish woman in Los Angeles goes to Godin's for her shoes; women who are quick to comprehend can see at once that it does not cost as much in a year to wear such shoes as Laird, Schorber's as it does to wear some of the supposed cheaper sorts—and then ones feet always appear and feel so much better.

"VENI! VIDI! VICI!"

This Famous Old Quotation So Aptly Expresses Our Condition That We Beg to Here Inscribe It.

That We Have Conquered is Amply Attested by Our Year's Record, Published in This Paper Last Week, and by the Outspoken Praise of Thousands of Our Grateful Patients.

A New Year's Opening.

As we enter upon our second year of labor among the sufferers of California, we deem it our duty to here proclaim our lasting gratitude to our loyal patients, who have done so much to tear the deceitful mask from the hidden face of prejudice.

Prejudice can no longer rob us of the fruits of our labor. We have tried our cause in the Public Tribunal, where justice is withheld from no one. The popular verdict has been rendered in our favor, and now with our position fully assured, we are ready to repeat our past triumph, and strive for fresh laurels in our field of human endeavor.

The kind words spoken for us by people whose only interest was in the afflicted friends whom they advised to consult us, have been a tidal wave that has brought to us hundreds of chronic sufferers who now bless the day they came to us.

These are facts that sufferers can verify to their heart's content by a little neighborly investigation.

Why Do We Succeed?

Because, we are a staff of five specialists, each one trained and educated in his chosen specialty, each one perfectly equipped for the work in hand, each one having the council of the other four to detect all complications of your disease. This is the perfection of medical practice and the thoughtful sufferer is not slow to appreciate its great blessings. Why did 250 patients receive treatment in our office in a single day? Because, they had investigated our institution; because they had been convinced of our responsibility, our fairness and our ability. Because, they would not let prejudice stand in the way of their health and happiness. Because, we have the only perfectly equipped medical institute in California and because, we make every promise good.

A Tribute to Skill.

For over ten years I have been a chronic sufferer from nervous debility and female troubles and in all that time I have never received a particle of relief from either doctors or medicine. I came to California a year ago, hoping that the climate might make my troubles easier to bear. My hopes were not realized and six months ago I consulted the English and German Expert specialists as a final resort.

When I began treatment I was not able to sit up for more than a few hours at a time, and the misery in my back was something terrible. At night I tossed about in a nervous strain and when morning came I was more dead than alive.

For the last month I have not been able to believe my senses, for I sleep all night long, wake up rested in the morning, eat splendidly and have gained twenty pounds. I haven't words to express my gratitude for these skillful specialists, and if all suffering women would consult these specialists there would be more health and happiness in this fair clime.

Very gratefully,
MRS. A. L. T.

All persons desiring an interview with Mrs. T. can obtain her address at this office.

A Logical Argument.

It requires no great depth of thought to appreciate the fact that five educated specialists are more competent to successfully treat chronic disease than any lesser number of men, no matter how competent.

Our Success.

Is due entirely to the fact that each specialist is thoroughly equipped in his special branch and treats only such cases as come under his specialty. During the past year we have had hundreds of cases that had been under the care of other physicians and yet no one had properly diagnosed their troubles.

Our Examinations.

Are so expert and exhaustive that we never fail to detect the true nature of your disease. NO PHYSICIAN can successfully treat a disease the exact nature of which he does not understand and the public has begun to realize this fact. CHRONIC SUFFERERS must look to the conscientious, honorable specialists for relief and if they but use little judgment it will not be difficult to select the proper medical advisers.

A Prominent Mining Man.

JOSEPH K. FRIZELL.

One of California's Most Prominent Mine Owners, Is Cured of a Terrible Skin Disease.

"When I became interested in mining in California eight years ago, I had the misfortune to contract a peculiar form of skin disease that the doctors said was due to the alkali dust of the desert. I consulted the best doctors and specialists on the Coast, but my trouble was only benefited temporarily. It broke out all over the covered portions of my body and limbs, and at times my flesh seemed on fire. The itching was something awful, and it is no stretch of the imagination to say that I wanted to scratch myself to death. Six months ago I decided to consult the famous English and German Specialists of this city, and it was a 'lucky strike' for me. Today my skin is as clean and healthy as it was before the trouble, and I take this opportunity to express my unbounded admiration for these Specialists, who have done for me what other doctors failed to do. Very Truly Your Grateful Patient,

RUNNING A CAMPAIGN.

IT COSTS A LOT OF MONEY, WHETHER ON THE WINNING OR LOSING SIDE.

How the National Executive Committees Work—The Way the Work is Divided Up—Some of the Ways in Which the Dollars Go—News-papers in Foreign Tongues—The Printing Committee and the Important Part it Performs.

(From a Special Contributor to The Times.)

No two Presidential campaigns are conducted alike, but all are directed by National Executive committees and the headquarters of such a committee is always the very vortex of political activity during the continuance of the fight. Down to the present time both the great parties have had camps in New York, though more than once determined moves have been made to locate them elsewhere. Washington has always been the favorite place for a large contingent of the Republican leaders who have held the national capital to be preeminently the best place from which to direct a national campaign. Those who have favored and so far succeeded in having New York chosen, have urged that it is in the center of the densest voting population in the United States; that it affords unequal facilities for printing the millions on the back of millions of documents that are every four years sent out promiscuously over the land; and most important of all, perhaps, that the facilities for sending out news are greater in New York than elsewhere. Against a part of these arguments the partisans of Washington have always urged the fact that the government printing office, where the presses are turned out the "documents" that have been delivered as speeches in Congress so as to be "frankable"—that is, sent free through the mails—is in Washington; but this consideration has never been deemed strong enough to win the campaign headquarters for the capital.

Some there be who hold that a substantial, though not publicly announced reason for choosing New York, has been the fact that the members of the executive committees of both parties delight to abide for a time amid the attractions of that city, and, curiously enough, it has long been an unwritten law that the headquarters of both should be on Fifth avenue, and that private dwelling houses should be their habitation. It has not always been easy to find such a house vacant, and in 1892 the Republicans, who had to lease a place for headquarters rather late, came near not finding one at all. They were finally obliged to take up with one somewhat between Fourth and Fifth streets, which was altogether too far uptown to suit a good many. The Democrats got a place much further downtown, and the fact that the two places were literally miles apart made it mighty disagreeable for the reporters and correspondents who had to "cover" the campaign.

The first thing to be done after a crisis in a single day over the intricacies of the job. The executive chairman is by all odds the hardest-worked of all those who occupy headquarters during the campaign. He feels that the burden of the contest is on his shoulders. He is in a constant state of terror lest some act have been committed either by himself or some of his subordinates that will "burialize" the campaign. The number of letters he is obliged to answer daily is greater, probably, than those which come to any other mortal in existence, no matter of how exalted position. His callers are numberless, literally by the thousands. It is especially impossible for him to see them all, and it is equally impossible to decide wisely as to who shall be refused an audience. His every action is watched by critics and fault-finders, and he knows it; and the wonder is not that the reputation of the executive chairman for political sagacity sometimes suffers during the campaign, but rather that at its close he has any reputation at all, no matter which way the contest ends. No two campaign committees organize exactly alike, but there is a general similarity in the division of labor. There is always a treasurer and a secretary, a Speakers' Committee, a Finance Committee, a Printing Committee, and a Committee on Election Methods. Naturally the treasurer is at the head of the Finance Committee, and in some respects he is backed even worse than the executive chairman, since he not only has to strain every faculty to secure sufficient contributions to meet the truly enormous expenses of the campaign, but also to so manage the funds after he has them in hand as to prevent a deficit, or at least to great a one, at the end. If the treasurer is a method-diamonds all the time and drink champagne three times a day—that are distributed over the country at great expense and, as some say, with little effect from the details of every campaign. With regard to documents as with regard to stump speakers, committees differ. Some committees believe in documents as the only salvation of the party, and one committee of which the writer has some knowledge printed and tried to put out about a hundred million of documents, including text books, or one and a third to every man, woman and child in the United States. The man who had the contract for getting out the enormous mass of printing was almost driven into a perfect bedlam by the complications with which he found himself surrounded. The campaign was begun rather late and lasted only ten weeks. It will therefore be seen that he had to get out nearly ten million documents a week, and although he was located in New York, he had no plant of his own at the beginning of the campaign, and expected to get the work done at the various offices of Gotham. He soon found this quite impracticable, and was obliged to put in a lot of presses for himself, at a ruinous expense, owing to the haste with which he had to have his machines put in place. Even then he had to give out great quantities of the work, and before the campaign was over he had to hire a man for the sole purpose of visiting the twenty sub-printers every day and overlooking their work. This man's bills aggregated dangerously near the $300,000 mark, and he hoped to make a lot of money out of it, but it is extremely doubtful that he did.

Of course the getting out of such an enormous number of documents renders necessary the organization of a tremendous shipping department. In the case just mentioned, this department, together with the binding department of the printer occupied two or three floors of a huge building, a whole block long, and several hundred men, women, boys, and girls, were kept busy every day and Sunday, and many nights, during the campaign, in getting the matter off. The expenses of the department constituted one of the greatest eyegores of the whole campaign with the methodical treasurer of the Executive Committee, and it is very doubtful that any other executive committee will go so extensively into the document business as did this one.

Another important function of the Executive Committee is to furnish correct political pabulum to the newspapers, beside general news, and this is attended to by the Press Bureau, generally attached to the Printing Committee.

"BUREAU OF ORATORY." The chairman of the "Bureau of Oratory," as the stump-speakers' department is sometimes colloquially known about headquarters, has a job that can hardly be considered a "snap." The lumber-tongued members of the party who are in hard luck always rush to him in great numbers, each one armed with innumerable letters of recommendetails too fatiguing or trivial for members of the committee themselves, who, although he may nominally be connected with one special department, has to do with the details of every department. One man who was so employed by an executive committee a few campaigns back, had to audit the printers' bills, to look after the artists who drew cartoons for the committee, to draw up the contracts with those who desired to furnish services of one kind and another, to look after the work of the newspapers published in foreign tongues, and attend to a thousand other unconsidered trifles. When the campaign was over the man, whose work had averaged from fourteen to sixteen hours a day, felt as though he had just awakened from a horrible and seemingly endless nightmare. It would require columns to describe the work of such a committee attached as this one. One branch of his work would undoubtedly seem very peculiar to an outsider.

This had to do with the newspapers published in foreign tongues, and certain class journals. Many American born readers are not aware that there are some hundreds of newspapers printed in the United States for the sole benefit of Finns and Hungarians and Scandinavians, Spaniards and Frenchmen and Hebrews who speak and read only Yiddish—to say nothing of the Germans, whose newspaper press, as every one knows, is important and dignified in America.

Most of the little known European tongues are well represented in New York by newspapers, and the man I speak of had to do with the newspapers printed in those tongues, nearly every one of whose editors was ready to espouse either side of the question for a consideration. Of course the editors claimed that this was not true, but unless they were "helped" in some way by the committee it would be inconvenient for them to devote a proper amount of space to booming the candidate. A good deal of the desired "help" was extended by both parties every year, but it was in the nature of standing orders for a certain number of papers of each issue, the orders ranging from three to ten thousand copies. Some of the papers were conducted by strictly honest men, but the man in question soon found that the publishers of some others were likely to forget to print the extra copies unless their pressrooms were regularly inspected.

THE SPEAKERS' COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN.

He therefore had to organize a small staff of inspectors, who made it a point to be present in the pressrooms, to count the copies published, and to see that they were properly deposited in the postoffice or otherwise effectively distributed. This, of course, added to the general joy, for the speakers were constantly reporting violations of contract, and in several instances were obliged to remain up all night in order to accommodate themselves to alleged exigencies which made it necessary to print small weekly papers, theretofore always printed in the morning, at midnight's witching hour—perhaps the publishers thought the inspectors would not care to be present at that time.

EXPENSES AND OTHER MATTERS.

The expenses of a national executive committee vary as much as the method of conducting them. One committee which did its work only a few years ago, is said to have used up $1,500,000 in its existence of less than three months, but $1,500,000 is probably nearer the average. Besides the ways of using money of which I have already spoken, there are a hundred other avenues for its escape. Nearly every committee establishes several secret bureaus which are located away from the headquarters themselves. There are bureaus for the workmen, bureaus for the Sweden and voters of other nationalities, and even bureaus for the liquor dealers, whose favor is generally courted by both parties. Curiously enough, more than one committee has maintained a temperance bureau contemporaneously with the liquor dealers' bureau.

The number of typewriters bought and worn out by each committee is very large. In 1892 one of the committees gave a single order for 250 machines. The selection of employees, of which each committee must have a hundred or more, in addition to the speakers and traveling agents, is an important and delicate task, since the persons engaged must be unquestionably true to the political faith as the committee itself must be strictly trustworthy so that no allowed traveling expenses, which into the enemy's camp, and must be capable of exceedingly hard work for ten, twelve and sometimes sixteen hours a day. They are generally well paid, sometimes too well, for it always happens that a few get their names on the pay-roll whose sole qualification is a political pull. The number of these, however, is usually surprisingly small, and as soon as their hard-working fellows discover them by reason of their unwillingness to work, they are generally "sent to Coventry" without mercy and without delay.

A most important part of an executive committee's work is known as "polling doubtful States"; that is, securing a supposedly correct and complete list of the voters in each State. These lists are sometimes a great deal of money, and sometimes are found to be discouragingly inaccurate and incomplete. This is not surprising when you consider the brief life of an executive committee. In very few cases does such a committee have more than three months in which to do its work—and this work is really of the most difficult sort throughout, since it means the organization of a vast business institution as well as of a political machine. There are those who hold that permanent headquarters, permanent officers and permanent employees, include a well-paid executive head. Such an institution would have four years instead of three months in which to do its work. Its poll lists would be kept constantly revised, and its machinery would be always well oiled and efficient.

The nearest approach to anything of the sort is furnished for the Republican party by the American Protective Tariff League, of which Wilbur F. Wakeman is secretary and Cornelius N. Bliss is president. The institution has headquarters in New York, is unendingly engaged in revising poll lists and forever printing and distributing documents. It employs a large number of people and has its agents in every section of the country, and if the Republicans win this year it will no doubt be largely because the American Protective Tariff League has kept protection ideas before the public so continuously.

In 1892 the Reform Club, also with headquarters in New York, bore a relation to the Democratic party that was somewhat similar to the footing of the Tariff League with the Republican party. Its president is Calvin Tompkins and its secretary is T. Carroll Root. Previous to 1894 and for the first two years of Mr. Cleveland's present term the Reform Club devoted its energies exclusively to the promulgation of low-tariff doctrines, but for some time past it has been working chiefly in the interests of single-money standard. Whether it will be able to harmonize with the platform and nominee of the Democratic party in 1896 is a rather grave question.

The campaign will begin late this year and it is possible that at least one of the big parties will have its headquarters away from New York.

John Riley, charged with violating the saloon ordinance, was arraigned and his trial set for June 27.

Robert and Gerald Havens were charged before Justice Morrison with disturbing the peace by throwing rocks at some playmates. Robert was sentenced to thirty days and Gerald to twenty days, but the sentences were suspended.

L. A. Hammond, charged with petty larceny, was arraigned before Justice Morrison and his trial was set for June 22.

Gene Rappet and L. Valenzuela, charged with disturbing the peace, were discharged.

George Moss, John Brahen and Ben Springer, charged with violating the liquor ordinance, were fined $1, but the fines were remitted.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

That Spiritualism Expose.

To the Editor of The Times: In a morning paper W. W. Tatum has a communication reflecting on my expose of spiritualism. I have already written, challenging me to meet him some evening during my week's stay here. I am only too glad to oblige him and have secured the Burbank Theater for next Thursday evening, June 25. Mr. Tatum's letter bristles so with attempted sarcasm and intemperate language that I am forced to the conviction that my expose must have been the success of your paper pronounced it, where you said I "went rapidly on, turning mind-reading and somnambulism inside out." Now I will make the following proposition to Mr. Tatum and include with him every medium, clairvoyant, or so-called slate-writer in town: For every trick they will perform on the stage that I cannot duplicate or explain, I will agree to forfeit $10 to any charity they may name, the Newsboys' Home preferred, and I will engage not only to give a pleasant performance, but to make it so interesting for the spiritualists this time as to double the amount of hisses and jeers they were kind enough to favor me with last Thursday evening.

Yours truly,
T. C. ALEXANDER.

Mrs. Cleveland and Her Doll.

(Chicago Inter Ocean.) The Capital of Washington tells a story about Mrs. Cleveland, a little girl, and a doll. Mrs. Cleveland gave a name to the doll which was not disclosed, and the girl who guessed correctly was to get the doll. Mrs. Cleveland named the doll "Columbia," and after almost every little girl in the city had tried to guess its name, and the envelope containing the guesses was about to be sealed up because not one had guessed correctly, little Margaret Lathrop, who lives at Concord, Mass., in the home that used to belong to Hawthorne, went to the bazaar and guessed the correct name, and of course she has the doll. Mrs. Cleveland asked Margaret afterward how she happened to guess that the doll's name was Columbia, and she said: "Mrs. Cleveland, I thought Columbia was the name you ought to give the doll."

OH, THESE PREACHERS.

THE TROUBLE THEY CAUSE IN SECULAR CONTROVERSY.

A Santa Monica Minister Takes Issue with Dr. Wilson. Who Expressed His Opinion of the Southern Pacific and Its Harbor Scheme.

How these preachers love one another! It has come to such a pass that when one member of the cloth makes an assertion in his pulpit or through the public prints, some other member of the brotherhood promptly rises to call him a lamm diar and other pet names which in the good old days were monopolized solely by the ungodly. In The Times yesterday was told the story of the experience of Rev. J. A. B. Wilson of the First Methodist Church of Los Angeles, with the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's officials—how he had written to a New York marine journal to criticize some statements made about Santa Monica as a site for a harbor, basing his criticism on personal observation which was quickened by his old-time experience as a sailor. The Times printed the story because it seemed to throw some light upon the methods employed by the Southern Pacific and for the additional reason that expert testimony on deep-water harbor sites is seldom heard from a minister of the gospel.

Now comes another preacher, Rev. I. M. Merlino, rector of the Episcopal Church of Saint Augustine-by-the-Sea, at Santa Monica, who in a long letter undertaken to rise the Rev. Dr. Wilson up the back in a manner indicating that a joint debate between the reverend gentlemen would be exceedingly interesting, with or without gloves. The rector of the hyphenated church by the sea waves intimates first, that Dr. Wilson is not expert testimony, though he may have been at nineteen a mate of a large vessel, though nothing is said about boxing the compass or splicing the main brace. First, Mr. Merlino asserts his entire trust in the Southern Pacific Company and its harbor scheme, because, to his certain knowledge, some sick and destitute people had been given cheap and even free transportation by the generous railroad officials on his request. Realizing that even this proof of generosity is not conclusive evidence that the Southern Pacific's claims for the Santa Monica harbor scheme are absolutely true, the rector clinches the matter by saying that, contrary to the statement that vessels cannot lie safely at the long wharf to discharge, he has seen many of them lying peacefully alongside the pier. The tenor of the whole letter can be judged from this excerpt.

"I have seen scores of vessels discharging at the wharf since its construction, and I have invariably found the vessels tied close to the wharf, the side of the vessel touching the sides of the wharf. Passenger and freight vessels, small and large vessels, sailing and steam vessels, American and foreign vessels, all kinds of vessels, and I brand the assertion of Bro. Wilson as untrue, false and misleading. uttered by him through ignorance, or through malice. I know not which, the conclusion remains the same. Suppose the ship St. John were discharging some thirty feet from the wharf, could not the ship do so from other motive than that of safety? Cases have been known where the ropes were wilfully cut in order to bring discredit on the wharf. Well, well, if Dr. Wilson's qualifications as an 'expert' are not better founded than this, they must be very flimsy and unreliable indeed. Here he is the noble preacher took a trip to the mammoth wharf, one day, an expert out experting. There he saw a ship of salinity name, discharging her cargo thirty long feet (more or less) from the wharf, therefore, the wharf is not safe, therefore, Santa Monica is not a place for a harbor ergo, oh, the shade of Whately! Ergo, the man who wrote the article for the New York Marine Journal either didn't know what he was talking about, or was venal!"

As another specimen of churchly rhetoric here is another from the letter of Rev. Mr. Merlino's: "Here then I say is well unparalleled, egotism unsurpassed, and a blatant, that cannot be equalled by a year-old calf, all concentrated in 'Expert' Wilson's harbor."

leled, egotism unsurpassed, and a blatant, that cannot be equalled by a year-old calf, all concentrated in 'Expert' Wilson's harbor."

WHAT MR. CRAWLEY SAYS.
"What do I think of Dr. Wilson?" said John M. Crawley, assistant general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, yesterday. "I think he is a very charming gentleman."

"What do you think of the story he tells as to the article he wrote on the Santa Monica Harbor question for the New York Marine Journal, which fell into the hands of the Southern Pacific?"

"As to that, I have nothing to say," replied Mr. Crawley. "But I don't remember any such occurrences as he describes, except calling me up once by telephone."

"Has the Southern Pacific the letter he tells about?"

"I can't say anything about that."

"Do you admit, then, the truth of all he says?"

"Oh, no! For instance, he says it would take $100,000,000 to build a harbor at Santa Monica. I don't believe that proposition. But Dr. Wilson is a very fine man."

And Mr. Crawley became as silent as the Sphinx.
